MALT WHISKY

When it comes to picking a malt whisky there is a lot to choose from.

There are five whisky regions in Scotland - Campbeltown, Highlands & Islands, Islay, Lowland and Speyside. Each offers a different and distinctive personality.
Ask your server for assistance or try one of our flights and find your favourite.

Speyside

The most densely populated whisky region in the world, famous for fertile glens and, of course, the River Spey. Home to about 60 distilleries despite the small physical size of the region, it's the most important region for whisky production by sheer volume. Speyside whiskies are known for being frugal with peat and full of fruit. Apple, pear, honey, vanilla and spice all have a part in expressions from this region, which are commonly matured in Sherry casks. With so many distilleries in Speyside, there's a lot of variation in the flavours of the whiskies.

There's no real distinctive Speyside character, though most of the whiskies produced there are fairly sweet.
If you're looking for a more sherried, heavier taste, you can look for a Glenfiddich 15 year or Macallan 12 year, or for a more floral taste, you can look for a Linkwood or even a Glen Moray.

Highlands

This region, which also takes in the islands, has a huge diversity of flavours and characters. The largest geographical whisky-producing region of Scotland, if not one with the most distilleries; only about 30-ish in total. From lighter whiskies all the way through salty coastal malts, the Highlands offers a whisky for all palates.

The western Highland distilleries have a fair amount of peaty taste to them, and tend to be sweet and dry, while the North Highland whiskies tend to be light, spicy and dry. The rest of the whiskies in the Highlands are generally fruity, but not quite to the same degree as the Speysides. They still have a dry finish. Some famous ones include Oban, Glenmorangie, Dalmore and Royal Lochnagar.

Lowlands

Soft and smooth malts are characteristic of this region, offering a gentle, elegant palate reminiscent of grass, honeysuckle, cream, ginger, toffee, toast and cinnamon. The whiskies are often lighter in character and perfect for pre-dinner drinks. The region of Scotland closest to England, whiskies from the Lowlands are light, dry and fruity. Most Lowland distilleries were traditionally triple distilled, but with only one, Auchenstoshan still utilising this practice, the typical Lowland characteristic flavour profile is due to the large copper stills used, the long fermentation time and because most are unpeated.

Islay

Islay is a magical island where the majority of its population are involved in whisky production. Famous for fiery, heavily peated whiskies. Some of the most distinctive tastes in Scottish whisky come from this region, which is rich in peat bogs and sea spray. Despite its small size, it has some of the most famous distilleries in Scotland- a fame brought about by the (non-too-coincidental) peaty character of most of its whiskies. The Islay whiskies are not for everyone. Variously described as “medicinal”, “cough syrup”, “barbecue”, “chao-da”, these drams are something of an acquired taste. The more famous, representative brands are Ardbeg, Laphroaig and Lagavulin.

Islands

Island whiskies will vary widely, but islands including Orkey, Jura, and Skye generally lay claim to peated, full-bodied malts that result from the windswept, rugged terrain and maritime location. Location: The islands of Arran, Jura, Mull, Orkney, Skye, and Raasay span Scotland’s western perimeter.

Campbeltown

Campbeltown whiskies are varied and full of flavour. Hints of salt, smoke, fruit, vanilla and toffee mingle in whiskies of robust and rich character. Once home to 30 distilleries, the mighty have fallen far indeed. Now home to only three operational distilleries, Campbeltown is lonely these days. The whiskies produced here, Springbank, Glen Scotia and Kilkerran, are very similar to Islay malts and have a peaty, briny character.
